Attorney General Bruning Leads Delegation to Meet With President Obama, Vice President Biden

LINCOLN – Attorney General Jon Bruning this morning led a delegation of state attorneys general to meet with President Barack Obama at the White House and Vice President Joe Biden at his residence.

Bruning was in Washington, D.C., as president of the National Association of Attorneys General, which was holding its spring meeting in the nation's capital.

“NAAG has a long history of meeting with the sitting president. I consider it an honor to carry on that tradition of open dialogue,” said Bruning.

Bruning and his colleagues discussed mortgage fraud and financial reforms with the president in the Roosevelt room.

Prior to the White House visit, the delegation met with Vice President Biden at his residence. There the group discussed the Violence Against Women Act, Byrne grants and funding for law enforcement.

Bruning was sworn in as the 102nd president of NAAG in June of 2009. He is the first president from Nebraska in the history of the organization.
